We were misinformed about the Jr. O. U. A. M. Council attending the Baptist church in a body last Sunday. They will attend that church next Sunday morning.

The rumor that the Bell, Lewis & Yates C. M. Co., are going to sell out to the New York Central is all a false report. There is no foundation for such a statement, at least so we have been informed.

Some person of this place, who signs his name "Medicus," advertises in a Clearfield paper to give information to all who send in their names how to be permanently and radically cured of hemorrhoids without an operation.

By a notice published in this issue of THE STAR it will be seen that the Reynoldsville Novelty Manufacturing Company will make application to the Governor of Pennsylvania on the 26th day of Dec, 1894, for a charter for the corporation above named.

Howard Johnston, of Rathmel, killed a large wild cat near that place last Friday. He brought the animal to Squire Neff's office and received two dollars bounty for a small piece off the ears of the wild cat. These animals are not plenty in this section of the county.

Thursday evening James Shaner was knocked down on Main st., at the Fifth street crossing, by a horse and buggy and narrowly escaped serious injury. James is deaf and he did not hear the horse coming and the driver could not stop the animal in time to avert the accident.

Some person who seems to be of the opinion that there are too many dogs in town, has been dropping an unhealthy button for the canines and a few of them have gone where dogs don't bark at the moon. It is well for the button distributor that his identity is not public property.

S. T. Reynolds, proprietor of the Reynolds block, called at the THE STAR office Monday morning and acknowledged that he took the pictures down out of the school rooms, as stated last week, and burned them, but he claims the pictures were placed on the walls unbeknown to the school directors, and without his consent.

Howard Steele, the pitiable looking piece of humanity that has been sleeping at the coke ovens and getting a "hand-out" wherever he can for a few weeks, should be looked after by the proper authorities. The poor wretch rightfully is a charge that the poor-oversers of Strattonville should look after. He is a son of "Red Jacket." He certainly needs the attention of some person.

Some person started the rumor last week that the Italians employed at the mines at this place intended to murder all the people and burn the town Saturday night. The story raised some excitement among the school children and a few timid people. It was a very absurd story to receive the notice it did. It is not likely that the Italians even entertained the thought of doing damage to life or property.

A. L. Peters, of Hopkins, killed a pig the other day that was 258 days old which tipped the scales at 348 pounds, making an average growth of one pound and five ounces every day of its life, almost one ounce each hour. This hog turned off twenty-one gallons of lard. Mr. Peters claims he can get as much growth out of a hog in six or seven months as most people can get in a year and a year and a half.

Sometime in October we made mention of Ninian Cooper putting a potato on exhibition in the Reynoldsville Hardware Co's store that weighed three pounds. It was the largest potato we heard of in this section this fall. And now Mr. Cooper thinks he killed the largest hog on Monday for its age to be found in this neighborhood. The pig was eight months and fifteen days old and weighed 333 pounds when dressed. A. L. Peters killed a pig a few days ago that would weigh Mr. Cooper's pig.

A Pointer.
If you don't attend the phonograph entertainment to be given in Centennial hall this evening, you will wish you had after it is too late. The phonograph receives the highest praise wherever exhibited. Reserved seats on sale at Reed's shoe store for 35 cents. Don't stay at home and then be compelled to lament about it afterwards, which will be the result if you don't hear it.

Death from Diphtheria.
Clyde, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Richards, died of diphtheria last Wednesday forenoon and was buried in Boulah cemetery Thursday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. P. J. Slattery. Three of Mr. Richards' children were afflicted with the dread disease, but little Clyde was the only one taken out of the family circle. He was a bright and cheerful little fellow and he is sadly missed.

Nuptial Knot.
Dennis E. Bell, of this place, son of J. H. Bell, superintendent of the B. & L. & Y. C. M. Co., was married to Miss Maud Simpson, daughter of N. C. Simpson, of Indiana county, yesterday at the home of the bride's parents. The young couple are well and favorably known in Reynoldsville, Miss Simpson having visited in this place during the past summer. THE STAR joins their friends in wishing them unlimited joys and prosperity as they go down life's pathway together.

Not all Serene.
Things do not seem to be running as peaceably and smoothly at the Best school this term as they should. The school directors of Winslow township met at Hotel Belnap last Saturday to pay the teachers, and also to hear reasons why the teacher of the Best school should be removed and another teacher put in. There was no complaints that would justify the directors in removing the teacher, and they decided to let her remain in charge of the school.

Big Lamp Fell.
Miss Virginia Vorhees, the elocution teacher who gives lessons to a class in one of the large rooms on the third floor of the Reynolds block, met with a mishap that might have resulted disastrously. The room is lighted with a large Rochester oil lamp and Monday evening she blew out the light and walked away just as the lamp fell to the floor and scattered oil and a lamp globe around promiscuously. Had the lamp fallen a few minutes sooner it is likely the fire company would have had some work to do.

Death of an Infant.
Dr. and Mrs. Harry P. Thompson, of Portland Mills, Pa., brought the remains of their little five-weeks-old daughter to this place for burial Monday afternoon. Out of the five weeks the little baby remained with Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, four weeks it was a constant sufferer. The baby died Friday night and was buried in Pleasant Avenue cemetery Monday afternoon. Funeral services were held at the home of J. J. Sutter after the arrival of the afternoon train. Rev. P. J. Slattery conducted the services.

Skunk Story.
A West Reynoldsville gentleman tells the following skunk story: "A few years ago I visited a friend at Brockwayville. I was in a field with him and we saw a black and white animal about a half mile away, and I said it was a skunk. My friend would not agree with me on that point. He had a gun with him and I took it and shot the animal and then handed my friend the gun and told him to smell the muzzle of it. 'Whew!' the skunk odor was so strong that it almost knocked him down." The narrator claimed that it was the suction which carried the perfume so rapidly.

A Miraculous Doctor.
The Knoxville correspondent to the Brookville Republican in last week's issue claims that Dr. J. G. Steiner has had under his care during the past three months upwards of one hundred and forty cases of diphtheria, out of which he has lost but three or four. That is rather a big statement to take down at one gulp. One hundred and forty cases of diphtheria in one doctor's practice in the latter days of the nineteenth century is certainly a big epidemic, and to lose only two out of a hundred is remarkable. Such skill should not be content with a country practice.

Tramps in Lock-up.
Tramps have been numerous in Reynoldsville the past two weeks. The town is never without more or less tramps, but they have been more conspicuous during the time mentioned than ever before. The ubiquitous creature has dropped onto a new scheme to get a warm place to sleep while sojourning in our midst. He looks for the burgess or police about the time he is ready to hang up for the night and asks to be put in the lock-up all night. As high as three bunks in the lock-up one night last week. There is a stove in the lock-up with gas and the tramps do not suffer from cold. This business will soon get old and the tramp will have to seek lodging at the coke oven, tannery or railroad engine houses.

How "The Star" is Missed.
We received the following communication Saturday from a subscriber who had not received his paper for two weeks:
"Something is wrong with the Solar System. I would like to have you investigate. A STAR that in several years has not failed to appear, has not been seen by us for the past two weeks; its effulgent rays have ceased to shine around our hearstone; its place in the constellation of periodicals is vacant and none other can fill it. Our exile has been made tolerable, our loneliness bearable, the solitude of the encompassing hills has been softened, and life has been brightened by the periodical appearance of that STAR; but now, alas, without its kindly rays how dense is our darkness, how sad is our exile, how unbearable the solitude of our surroundings. To you I entrust the responsible mission of searching for this lost, strayed or stolen STAR, and in the pursuance of your investigation let the knowledge that upon its recovery depends our peace of mind, be a spur to your diligence. In other words, we have not received our paper for two weeks."

Injured in the Mines.
Charley Clayton had his left leg broken in Sprague mine last Wednesday afternoon by a fall of coal.
Ed. Phillips had his left leg badly injured in the Hamilton mine last Wednesday by being caught between two coal cars.
Robert Bone Jr. had two fingers of his left hand badly lacerated last Wednesday while coupling coal cars in Big Soldier mine.

Harry Nichol, who works at Sprague mine, had his right hand badly smashed last Wednesday by a loaded coal car passing over it.
An Italian who works at the Standard had one of his little fingers lacerated while at work on Monday. About a quarter of an inch of bone was exposed at the end of the finger, the flesh having been torn off. The doctor who dressed the hand wanted to saw the bone off but the Italian would not let him do so.

Your Opportunity.
The Erie Evening Herald in its issue of the 23d ult. in speaking of Lyman Howe's phonograph entertainment, given in that city the evening before, says: "From the opening of the program to the concluding number the audience sat spellbound by the magic instrument, and round after round of applause greeted the rendition of each number. The programme consisted of the rendition of selections by bands and sweet singers, and the audience was in turn thrilled and touched, and swayed almost from laughter to tears. To say that the audience was pleased would be to express it very mildly; each one appeared to be delighted with the entertainment. The instrument is a wonderful one, was perfectly managed, and the tones reproduced were heard distinctly at the rear of the hall, which easily seats 1,000 persons."

Town Council.
The town council met in the council chambers Monday evening and transacted the business that came before them. A part of the business is as follows: Ordered a number of bills to be paid; instructed street committee to find out how far the east end of Grant street is to be opened; when the proposition to bond the borough for the purpose of paving more of the streets is to be submitted to the voters was held over until next meeting night; the new ordinance for huckstering, peddling, &c., passed second reading and will now be published as a law; the Worth street bridge was taken off the hands of the contractor and declared to have been built according to contract; the borough is to give a grade for sidewalks from the brick hotel to the creek.

Thanksgiving Services.
The union Thanksgiving services held in the Presbyterian church last Thursday was not as well attended as it should have been. It is not expected that people who make no profession of religion will attend services on such an occasion, although it would show gratitude on their part to the "Giver of all good and perfect gifts," to do so, but in this day of the nineteenth century it is expected that professed christians will be found worshipping on Thanksgiving Day where an opportunity is given. Rev. Kelley preached a good sermon. The Lutherans held Thanksgiving services in their church Thursday evening. Rev. Metzenthin preached the sermon. Services were held in the Catholic church Thanksgiving morning.

A Mad Italian.
A number of Italians had a hilarious time in their way of having such a time, in the east end of town on Thanksgiving evening. Knives and revolvers were in readiness for immediate use but were not used on this occasion. One of the lads became so furious that he began to bite his own flesh. J. C. Ferris says the man bit four pieces out of his arm and spit the meat on the floor. The scene was almost too much for Caesar's nerves. The ghastly sight lingered around his bed in the night time.

Figs and Thistles.
(Ram's Horn)
When you bury emmity don't plant any flowers on its grave.
Whenever a man takes a crooked step he leads some boy astray.
There is no blood in the preaching that never makes the devil mad.
There is more dangerous meanness than that which claims to be religious.
What some people consider prudence is what their neighbors call meanness.
If all would think twice before they act once, how still the world would become.
No man has learned how to rest until he has learned how to live one day at a time.
You can't keep the devil out of your home by putting a handsome Bible on the center table.
It kills all the enjoyment some people have in their religion whenever they see a collection basket.
Were God to send an angel to look for a king among men, he would look for a man who could control himself.
You can count the times on your fingers when you have heard another talk to your satisfaction about himself.

Poetry in School.
Something out of the ordinary course happened in Warsaw school district last week. It was alleged that a young man named Shaffer, teacher of one of the schools, had been teaching poetry to his scholars instead of arithmetic, and one of the patrons made it the cause for preferring charges against him. The board of directors met on Wednesday to hear the allegations and proofs. Several hours were consumed in hearing the case. The gentleman preferring the charges admitted that he had learned a little poetry himself at school—"The boy stood on the burning deck," etc.—but said it had been of no use to him, while the arithmetic he learned had served him well all through life. After hearing the case patiently the board decided that the teacher hadn't done anything worthy of dismissal. A little poetry in the school room once in a while is all right, but arithmetic ought to have the right of way.—Brookville Democrat.

The people of Reynoldsville seem to know a good thing when they see it. The large amount of business W. E. Lenney is doing is proof for that. Is it any wonder when better pictures can be gotten at Lenney's gallery, Reynoldsville, for $1.00 per doz. than can be gotten some places for $3.00 and $3.50? His work will prove it; compare it.
Money saved by buying shoes at Reed's closing out sale.
